Let's Look Into the Mobile Radio

Lynchburg GE's Mobile Radio Service Center at the Carroll Avenue Plant is where all mobile radio equipment in active use by our customers is repaired or modified. Inside CAP, as well as at some customer sites, the factory-trained, technical staff provides both manpower and expertise to meet every customer's unique communication requirements.

Operating under the supervision of Bobby Taylor, this particular Service Center (one of seven in the country) serves not only our local customers, but reaches out to provide mobile radio services across the country and in foreign lands.

MERV NEWBERRY services the newer line of personal radio products, such as the Pagers. Likewise, he repairs and modifies any and all equipment and accessories for this product line.

Any problem or defect found in the units returned to the Service Center usually receives corrections or modifications from MILDRED BLACKBURN.

At his station, DAVE HARMON maintains primarily, the PR and PE radio units.

The majority of older Personal radio models, including the Message Mate radios, are serviced by LARRY PENDRY. It's his responsibility to repair, check and maintain all models still in use by the customer.

ED CLAIRBORN and ED LASCELL (not shown) work primarily with outside maintenance jobs. That is, they provide service calls to customers in addition to installing, repairing, or modifying the customer's equipment. In this shot, Ed Clairborn prepares to outfit the vehicle with a new piece of mobile radio equipment at the CAP location.

AS A MATTER OF INFORMATION:

Telephone extension 3353 in the Final Test Area at MVR was originally installed as a phone line to be used in conjunction with the testing of our Lynchburg-made communications equipment only, notes Malcolm Francis, foreman in this area. Personal calls have, since, caused much interruption in testing. Hence, Malcolm recommends that employees refrain from relying on this particular number for any calls.. No further incoming calls will be accepted.

Customer orders are received at this point. Both Bobby Taylor and CINDY JOHNSON handle customer requests here so that customer demands may be met in the least amount of time possible. Billing, too, begins at this point; as well as processing for credits and collections.
